Surviving Strong at the UNITE Half Marathon Series

Surviving Strong is thrilled to announce the UNITE Half Marathon at Rutgers University set for April 18, 2010.

Set in the heart of New Jersey, convenient to two major metropolitan areas - New York City and Philadelphia - Rutgers University provides the perfect backdrop for this inaugural race...and it is the perfect opportunity to show the region that cancer will not stop us!

Looking forward to 2010, this will be a key event for Surviving Strong. We plan to bring a large group to this event, showing just how strong and resilient cancer survivors are, and want all of you to be a part of it! Some of the things we are planning: a training program and great coaches to get every interested person to their first or fastest half marathon; an optional fundraising program with great perks; goodies and custom technical tees for all Surviving Strong participants; and more! Check our website's "Latest News" for more information.

We will have a block of entries reserved for us, and we are working on guidelines to have race fees comped/reimbursed, but UNITE will be offering a special registration opportunity to the first 100 entrants - a registration fee of only $17.66. Registration will open October 1, 2009. If you wish to register early to try and take advantage of the reduced fee, check the race web site directly

While we continue to work out the details, please reply to this email if you are interested in participating in this event or in helping organizing our team so we can keep you up to date.
